This is it

We have just two days to decide whether the future we want for Southeast Iowa is possible. If you haven't voted yet, please make it your top priority.

Monday, November 2nd is the final day to vote early in person.

Tuesday, November 3rd, the polls are open 7am-8pm. You must vote at the polling place assigned to your precinct. Click here to find yours.

No matter what, thank you

Whatever happens Tuesday night, I need you to know how profoundly grateful I am for everyone who has believed in this campaign.

Thank you to everyone who knocked on a door, made a phone call, shared a post, put up a sign, attended an event, talked to a neighbor, asked a difficult question, offered advice, donated, or simply told me, "Keep going."

This campaign was never about me; it was always about what we can accomplish when ordinary people come together and decide their communities are worth fighting for.

And that doesn't end when the polls close.

Regardless of what happens Tuesday night, I will still be here, serving, volunteering, advocating, and showing up for Southeast Iowa because I love this community and believe deeply in its future.

And I hope you will, too.

We don't need an elected title to make someone's life better. We don't need permission to serve our neighbors. And we sure as heck don't need an election year to care about what happens in our schools, hospitals, neighborhoods, businesses, farms, rivers, and communities.

But right now, we have the opportunity to take everything we've talked about to Des Moines and fight to make real change happen. Take that responsibility seriously.

Vote Monday. Vote Tuesday. Just make sure you VOTE.

Southeast Iowa's future is not something that will simply happen to us, it's something we get to choose. And right now, that choice is in your hands.

This is our shot

Throughout this campaign, I've talked about putting PEOPLE first.

About strengthening our public schools.

Making healthcare affordable and accessible close to home.

Confronting Iowa's cancer rates and finally getting serious about clean water.

Supporting working families and small businesses.

Protecting local control and our constitutional rights.

Building an economy where our kids can grow up, learn, find opportunity, raise families, and build good lives here.

Replacing politics and manufactured division with practical leadership focused on solving the problems Iowans actually face day-to-day.

But here's the truth:

None of those things change simply because we talked about them.

They change because people show up.

They change because people participate.

They change because you vote.

Democracy isn't something that happens around us, it requires something from us.

It requires us to pay attention. To question our elected leaders. To learn about the people asking for our votes. To think critically about what matters to our families and communities.

And then, when the moment comes, to show up.

That moment is here.

Please don't assume someone else will cast the vote that makes the difference, assume this election is already decided, or wake up Wednesday morning wishing you had done more.

Your vote is the part of this campaign that no volunteer, donor, candidate, advertisement, or social media post can replace.

You have to cast it.

With more gratitude than I can express,

Jennifer Kirkman
